The Bachelor of General Studies (BGS) degree is an undergraduate degree specifically for adult learners who have delayed or interrupted their studies, or for whom their original major is no longer appropriate. Your path to a bachelor's degree will be built around your unique college credit history, and, if applicable, incorporate transfer credits and mast major-specific work.

The BGS degree will allow you to build a custom concentration out of two minors, or a custom concentration area rather than a single content focus, while meeting all bachelor's degree requirements. It is designed to be multidisciplinary and have maximum flexibility to suit the needs of a wide variety of students.

All general education requirements can be met with online courses, and several minors are also offered online, including:

- General Business
- Criminal Justice
- Psychology
- Childhood Studies
