

PUBLIC PLANNING AND ADMINISTRATION (BACHELOR OF SCIENCE, B.S.)

Overview

The only undergraduate major of its kind in Missouri, the career-focused Bachelor's Degree in Public Planning and Administration trains students to cultivate their appreciation for social sciences and humanities to improve the quality of life in their communities. Students won't just learn social sciences and humanities, they will learn how to "do" social sciences and humanities for the greater good. Students with an interest in Economics, History, Philosophy, Political Science, or Sociology can put their core transferable skills to use in service to others. The Public Planning and Administration degree will prepare students for internships and employment in many growing areas: local, state, and national government; non-profit organizations; community outreach and uplift organizations; and service-oriented businesses.
